GRADUATION PROGRAM COMPLETE

Summer being on us, we shall be treated to much sagacious advice on how to withstand the effects of it. Subside mainly on green vegetables, they will tell us, like cows, which are rearely overcome by heat; and drink plenty of water, like fish, which are immune to prostration; and sleep all we can, because no one ever gets a sunstroke while asleep, or if he does, is happily unaware of it. The best advice of all, however, is to go slow.

Don't be in such a tearing hurry to get things done. Both work and play can still be pursued on another day if you do not collapse before the day ends. Exactly how fast a man should move with the temperature at 97 the doctors have not stated but we imagine the Arkansas rustic who caught a glimpse of a snail the other day—when it passed him—was keeping within reasonably safe limits.

Have a serene, unexcitable snail for your pace setter. Then your worst injury from heat will probably be a sunburn received when the shade moves faster than you care to follow. This is a trifle compared with having your heart give out because you rashly move faster than the shade.

Motion makes heat. Heat, says Webster, "is kinetic energy of confused oscillating motions of the particles or molecules of matter." The particles within you will oscillate more or less, whether or no, when the mercury mounts high. But you can keep the whole mass that compose your 200 laboring pounds from moving too rapidly down the baking street and over the sun blistered golf course.

Advocates of greater athletic activities in high schools will be dismayed by the results of a survey resulting in the startling disclosure that of 900 high school pupils with a tubercular taint 810 were members of one or more athletic teams. This survey, of course, was limited to a small area, so it may show a local, rather than a general condition.

Authorities on tuberculosis urge against violent exercise on the part of the afflicted and yet of the infected school athletes a large percentage will throw off the disease before any serious damage is done. So it may as well be that school sports cure rather than cause the disease.

Rather than blame the surprising amount of tuberculosis among youth upon its athletic activities, medical science should seek the cause in malnutrition, undernourishment and late hours necessitated by home study. High school youth lives at too fast and furious a clip for growing bodies and minds. It is surprising that there are so few breakdowns.

While the theory that sports are breaking down undeveloped bodies will be discounted this survey is a warning and a lesson. The question arises: Are physical examinations for school athletes properly and carefully made?

It ill behooves the stewards of public funds to give costly physical training to boys and girls who need rest more than anything else.

Hardly a day passes without some executive committee or body of delegates presuming to think and speak for the whole membership. Candidates and parties are endorsed, policies approved or rejected and pompous representatives tell the press that the million men and women "for whom they speak" think thus and so and will vote those convictions. And yet these spokesmen know that there is a great diversity of opinion among their members and that their vote will be divided in more ways than there are names printed on the ballot.

There is no greater farce or deception than this pretext and yet it is constantly being worked upon an unsuspecting public and upon politicians. (Turn to page 9)

ANN HARDING SHOWS HOW TO REWIND MAN IN "THE LADY CONSENTS"

A startling recipe for proving to a philandering husband that it is his wife whom he really loves, is provided by Ann Harding in "The Lady Consents," with Herbert Marshall, co-starring.

Dr. Talbot is a fashionable New York physician, to whom women persistently pay court. He became involved in a serious affair and asks his wife to free him.

How she brings him to her feet again and cures him of his "heart attacks," makes a delightful comedy and tense drama of a high order.

Margaret Lindsay is cast as "the other woman" in the case and succeeds in making the character as hated as the author intended. In the role of Dr. Talbot's rough-and-ready father is Edward Ellis. Others in the RKO Radio Picture include: Walter Abel, Hobart Cavanaugh and Ika Chase.

At the Cameron Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday May 26 and 27.

NEW RURAL POWER LINES COMPLETING

Forty-six miles of rural light and power lines will soon be completed in Milam county, it was announced by F. E. Woodruff, district manager, here Wednesday.

This program of bringing power and lights to the rural sections continues. The lines to Tracy and Sharp have been started.

Proposed government projects are making no headway. The plan which makes users responsible for the investment has led many to turn away from the plan. The people prefer service without obligation. Under the government plan stock companies are formed and rural dwellers must be responsible for the investment and must thus get into the power business.

FURNEAUX LEAVING JUNE 1 FOR WACO

Joe Furneaux, district manager for the Community Natural Gas Co., in Cameron, will leave this city on June 1 for Waco where he will enter the engineering service of the company.

Mr. Furneaux graduated from the engineering school at A. & M. College and will enter the mechanical engineering branch of the gas company service.

Richard Bush of Waco will succeed Mr. Furneaux in Cameron.

The local public has expressed an interest in the matter of the teacher's salaries.

Below you will find the salaries received by the teachers over the past three years and that fixed for the coming school year 1936-37. The salaries are listed on a yearly basis.

The finances of the state fund, from which the State per capita apportionment is paid, was such last year that each school district received one dollar increase per capita. This netted the Cameron School district approximately $1400.00. This amount was promptly and gladly distributed among the teachers by the board and accounts for the increase in salaries reflected in the schedule below for this present year (Turn to page 7)

Liquor prices in Cameron are tumbling down to pre-prohibition day levels, it was revealed here today when Cameron Package Store, owned by Jack Owings, Jr. released for publication an advertisement setting out numerous quotations, covering the large stock of wines and liquors.

Many nationally advertised and better known brands of liquors are quoted at $1.00 for a pint.

Cameron Icers Is New Ball Club

The Cameron Icers made their debut here Sunday when they defeated the K. C. Team of this city by a score of 9 to 0.

The Icers are sponsored by Hayden Lawrence. Mr. Lawrence has purchased new equipment for the club, including new uniforms, which will probably be used for the first time in the game at Rosebud Sunday May 24. Reden Alford has been named field manager of the Icers.

On the Icers' roster will be found a number of players drafted from the former Cameron Comets.

The following players have been secured from A. & M. College: Dowling, catcher; Jackson, short stop; and Spreen, pitcher. These players have been outstanding performers at their positions in the Southwest Conference and will strengthen the Icers considerably. The management of the Icers is angling for the services of other notable performers on the diamond in this section, and a number of new additions are expected in the near future if present lineup fails to deliver as expected.

The Icers now line up as one of the strongest aggregations in Central Texas. A number of games have been scheduled with other strong clubs in this section. The Icers take on Rosebud at Rosebud Sunday May 24, with a return game here the following Sunday. The Temple Surgeons will move into town on June 7 for a double header, with the local nine.

The management informs us that new bleachers will be constructed at the local diamond, if necessary, to accommodate the crowds expected to lend their support to the Icers.

Tells About Indian Remains in Milam

The peculiar archaeology of Milam county and the results of six years research work in the ruins of Indian villages, were discussed in an address to the Central Texas Archaeological Society on Friday night at Baylor University, Waco, by J. B. White, editor of the Cameron Herald.

The following is the text of the address:

It was late afternoon of a hot summer's day in July, 1929, that I stopped suddenly on the highway north of Cameron. For no apparent reason except, perhaps, to answer that no-mad urge that sets us off from the very spot where dim trails lead away into pastures, I soon found myself swallowed up by green woods. I came upon a ravine, went down into its depths and soon was leisurely walking along its narrow walls, when suddenly there upon the clean, white sand I saw an ancient Indian spike. I had merely been casually interested before and knew little about such things.

I picked up the brown flint piece and stood thinking. I first thought of childhood impressions of naked, yelling savages swooping down on settlements and shooting these arrows into the inhabitants. Then my mind went back and I thought of the causes, and as I stood there I began to fashion in my mind a vague though thrilling appreciation of the Vanishing American. I thought of his history, his primeval back ground and then into antiquity my thoughts ran to search for the cradle of the race.

Time Has Erased Them

Somewhere in the ages that stretch back all things began. Here upon the sand I had found something that belonged to a dead race of men. Time had erased them from the prairies of Texas. To know more about (Turn to page 5)

UNDER THE COURT HOUSE DOME

By Berenice McLerran

A "Please Keep off the Grass" sign doesn't mean a thing to some people. Not so very long ago the court house lawn was plowed up and leveled so that the grass might have a new start and the appearance of the lawn be improved. In a very short time a path had been beaten across the middle of the lawn on the north-west corner by those citizens of Cameron and Milam County who were just too lazy to take a few extra steps and walk the cement walks.

"Keep off the Grass" signs were placed at both ends of the path a few days ago, but the walking down the path has continued and the signs ignored. To have a pretty court house lawn co-operation and heeding of "Keep Off the Grass" signs is needed.

It has been suggested that during the Centennial large flags be placed on the court house lawn. The six flags which have flown over Texas could be placed or either only two—o Texas flag and a United States flag.

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET AND DANCE

The social season of the year came to an end Friday night with the Junior-Senior banquet and dance.

At 7:30 p. m. a large group gathered at the Methodist Church and was ushered into the basement where tables were arranged and decorated in the centennial motif.

Plate favors were small baskets in the form of the Texas flag and each person's name was written on a star to indicate the place at the table.

During the dinner, talks were given by E. A. Perrin, W. C. Wiese, Neill Rylander, Cuthrel Heath, Charles Hensley and Lewis Kubecka. Helen Ryan presented a toast to the Seniors, and Clinton Breeding, president of the senior class, responded. Charles Ed Hensley presented the Seniors with their flag and Clinton Breeding returned the Junior flag. Vivian Whites and Frances Terry, accompanied by Catherine Monroe, led everyone in the singing of songs typical of Texas.

Mr. Wiese closed the program with a toast.

SENIORS OBSERVE ANNUAL CLASS DAY

The Senior Class celebrated Senior Day by going to Belton Friday for an all-day outing.

Seniors assembled at the high school and went by car and bus.

Swimming was the principal diversion.

Chaperones were Misses Daddie Young and Jolly Blanche Pitts, Mrs. Triggs and C. M. Hicks.

JUNIORS HONOR SENIORS AT DANCE

Friday evening at 9 p. m. the Country Club of Cameron was the scene of the annual Junior-Senior dance.

The Club was decorated in pioneer fashion.

Frank Hubert, a former Cameron boy, brought his eleven piece orchestra from Austin to play for the dance.

Chaperones were Misses Lucille Dickard, Daddie Young, Elizabeth Lanham and Jolly Blanche Pitts.

CLASSES HONOR SCHOOL BENEFACTORS

Mrs. Jeff Kemp paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Yoe at the memorial program in their honor Wednesday afternoon, May 13. Mrs. Kemp gave a sketch of the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Yoe, with incidents from her own association with them.

Dorothy Perkins and Clinton Breeding, representing the student body, each gave short talks.

The musical portion of the program included trombone solos by Robert Sloan Ryan and Willard Skelton and a sousaphone solo by Sam Bill Law.

Pupils and faculty of both schools attended the service.

SCHOOLS HOLD SERVICE AT YOE GRAVES

The faculty and two home room representatives from each group attended the annual Yoe Day Services at the cemetery on May 14, in memory of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Yoe. Rev. J. Coy Williams of the Methodist church offered a prayer, Ralph Mayfield, Grady Baskin and Rudolph Michalka played "Taps."

The graves were decorated with floral tributes from the Ada Henderson school and from the high school.

height. "How old is your umbrella?" he asked.

Judge—"Who was driving when you hit that car?"

Allen—"None of us Judge. We were all sitting in the back seat."

Traffic Cop—"Now, what gear were you in at the time of the accident?"

Miss Love—"Oh, I had on a black beret, tan shoes, and tweed spots dress."

One of the fruit-stall men in the city market was striving hard to add a few cents to the total of his sales. Bob H.—"We've got some fine alligator pears," he suggested.

Myrtle—"Silly," laughed the very young housewife, "we don't even keep a goldfish."

Luie—"What are the prices of the seats, Mister?"

"Front seats, one shilling, back seats, six pence, and program a penny."

Luie—"I'll sit on the program, please."

F. F. A. POULTRY TEAM IS OFFICIALLY CHOSEN

The Cameron Future Farmer poultry judging team of Louis Jurcak, Roy Mabry and Nolan Butler, with John William Baldwin as alternate, has been officially named as the Texas representative to go to Kansas City in October to judge against other states teams in a national contest. This official notice came this week in a letter from J. B. Rutland, State Adviser of the Texas Future Farmer Association. Mr. Rutland's letter says in part: Let us congratulate you and your boys on winning the state contest in poultry judging. Through this achievement you have proved your increased knowledge and skill to be superior, thereby winning the responsibility of representing the Texas Association of Future Farmers in the National Vocational Agriculture Students Judging Contest at Kansas City next October. You have 15,000 boys backing you and looking to you and your team to win recognition for yourselves and Texas. We hope you and your boys will continue your improvement in a way that will make you better day by day. We will appreciate your keeping in touch with the progress you are making." The letter was addressed to E. D. Parnell, Cameron teacher of Vocational Agriculture.

Which One Is Really Dangerous?

The driver only has the privilege of using the streets and highways as long as he does so in a proper manner. Notwithstanding that this principle is generally recognized, it seems to be difficult to rid the streets and highways of the careless and reckless driver. It seems to be the impression, in theory as well as in practice, that a person should be permitted to drive as he pleases as long as he is able to pay for the injuries or the damages he causes. The fellow who, for example, thinks he's Napoleon—everyone knows the type—isn't allowed to run loose. Not at all. Even if such a person isn't put somewhere to be cured, he is not permitted to play around with potentially dangerous implements. But how about the driver who thinks he's Sir Malcolm Campbell? That is the fellow who thinks that he can do anywhere from 60 to 100 miles an hour on the highway, and very often does. Shouldn't society demand that such a driver be kept out of circulation? The answer to that question will depend largely upon how many think they are capable of driving at excessive speeds. People have been heard to say, "Well, maybe what you say about speed is true, but it's different with me because I'm a good driver." The driver has yet to be found who admits he may be a little under par at times. Often the more under par a driver may happen to be, the more he is likely to think he's a Sir Malcolm Campbell. People are funny that way.

Indian Remains

them how they lived, what they believed and thought, I began to kindle to the possibilities. I turned about and retraced my steps. From somewhere up the ravine had come this old spike. For a long time I walked up the rough bed of the stream over whose boulders had poured the waters of many rainfalls, so many in fact none can tell. Abruptly I came to its end and there on a sloping sand hill I found an ancient village site. That camp lies north of Maysfield in a vast stretch of brush and broken ground. From it I have taken hundreds of artifacts.

From this experience on that lazy afternoon in the slanting rays of a Texas sun, when I first walked into the legendary tepes of the First American, hard by the rippling waters of the stream, I began a work of pleasing adventure that has led me to more than 50 villages where lived this now extinct race.

Vandalism Retards Work

To the one whose interest embraces more than the satisfaction of mere possession of these flint indexes to an ancient race, research, even though of unscientific nature, creates an unselfish devotion to the work and leads us to share with all men the common knowledge these discoveries afford.

The whole question of Archaeological research has been slow to achieve public recognition for several reasons. Chief among these has been selfishness of the private collector whose interest rarely ever approaches the stage where he is willing to give to the world the benefit of what his private efforts have achieved. Second in negative importance has been the vandalism that is born of curiosity, leading the inexperienced to attempt a work for which they have neither aptitude nor experience. Third I think is the failure of the state as well as institutions of learning to recognize the importance of the work this small group of scientists have been doing for years under great handicap.

I am unwilling, even for my own private collection consisting of approximately thirty thousand specimens, to remain permanently in my own possession, in contravention to the ultimate conclusion that posterity has the greatest claim upon these things.

Geology Big Aid

I am indebted to Central Texas Archaeological Society for this opportunity to discuss even within the limitations of a layman's knowledge, what I consider and have found to be one of the most interesting regions in Texas. I am grateful for the vast store of information you have passed along to us who know the fields better than the crucibles of technical knowledge. I have learned to employ the all important fact of geology in its practical phases, to research among Indian ruins in Milam County, to great advantage, in fact my first discoveries led me to build about my work a heartening dependence upon topography, geology and the soil. I soon learned that the simplest rudiments of discovery lay in knowledge of the terrain.

Milam County Interesting

Milam county is interesting from many standpoints. Across its surface in almost equal division of east from west lie the valleys of violent streams and rivers. Its area is subject to more than the common of devastation from erosion, so much so that its Elm Creek and water shed tributaries have been selected among ten other streams in America for soil control.

The eastern half of Milam county is locked in woodlands with small streams, springs and canyon like ravines. Slightly north of east from Cameron and stretching to the Brazos on the North and East lies the territory from which I have taken more than one third of my entire collection. The area to which I refer forms the western and northern banks of Little River along the valley of which are to be found many Indian villages. The territory covers approximately one fifth of the area of the county. Here the principal streams are Harl Creek, Walkers Creek, Prairie Creek, Pond Creek the largest empties into the Brazos, and numerous smaller water courses.

Balcones Fault Line

From the southwestern boundary enters Little River, the principal stream from Bell County. Its course lies across the black lands in major part and its wide bottom has been a rich source of collections. From the south comes the San Gabriel, its channel following somewhat the line of the Balcones Fault on which the ancient Missions were built by the early Spanish Priests, in a settlement now known to be near the town of San Gabriel. Eight miles south of Cameron the Gabriel merges with Little River. From the South flows Brushy Creek, emptying into the Gabriel about 8 miles south of the juncture of Little and San Gabriel Rivers. To the east lies the Milano Uplift an interesting geological phenomena. The course of all principal streams and their tributaries is north as opposed to gravity and general elevation. Four miles north of Cameron Little River, carrying the combined waters of these streams and their numerous tributaries, turns abruptly east and flows into the Brazos near the site of old Fort Nashville at Gause.

Numerous Villages

Along the banks of these streams lie numerous villages. The sites are somewhat concentrated in the vicinity of Cameron so far as Little River is concerned, due to the mouth of Sandy Creek lying only two miles southeast of the city, draining a large area in the sand country to the east.

West lie the black clays and north they stretch to the Bell and Falls County lines. From these very little has been taken.

Along the San Gabriel a large number of camps have been found and along Brushy Creek villages have yielded many interesting artifacts. Private collections are owned by a number of citizens in that section, notably the Clement and George Doss accumulations.

Sandy Creek

Sandy Creek with its eastern banks touching the lignite coal region of the southeastern part of the county, remains the greatest Indian stream in Milam County with the exception of Little River which because of its greater length, has produced more. Sandy Creek lies entirely in a sand and clay section of the county. Its tributaries are spring creeks. One of the largest camps to be found anywhere in Texas borders east on Sandy Creek. Beyond is an ancient Oyster Reef that juts along toward the coal deposits. This camp covers a large section of the Will Day and Winston Farms. Exactly opposite and for an equal distance on the Western bank lies a camp of such magnitude, its limits are difficult to determine.

Hog Island Camp

Only two known caches have been uncovered in Milam county. One on Hog Island southeast of Cameron between Sandy Creek and Little River. The other on the S. W. McClarren farm northeast of the city of Cameron a short distance from where Little River turns east to the Brazos. So numerous have been the yield of artifacts from these camps that it is not reasonable to suppose that the nominal midden could have existed in such numbers or richly yielding deposits as to produce literally thousands of as fine flint implements as are known to the world. Hog Island has thus far been the outstanding camp so far as numbers of flints taken. While my own collection has some 5000 taken from this camp alone, other collectors have profited greatly by plundering its remains.

Lies at Cliff Base

The camp, strange to say, lies at the base of a gravel bed chain that forms a cliff and the eastern boundary of Sandy Creek a short distance from its juncture with the river. West lies Little River, Running East and West is an ancient channel. North the river turns to hem in and make complete this Baskin farm of about 100 acres. In the violent overflow in 1921 and again in 1926 the current of the river dipped into the high ground of the old channel and spread hidden camp debris across the field for more than a quarter mile.

From this camp in one afternoon I took 300 arrows, lances, general blades and other implements. With each succeeding overflow the yield was rich. Today a large portion of this old channel bank which resembles a levy remains intact. Locked within its soil I am convinced lie hidden many additional flints. My work has been all of a surface nature. I have had no funds with which to excavate.

Just east of the Hog Island treasure lie the gravel banks and on a large hill now covered with farm houses, ancient shop sites can be seen where the artisan fashioned his blades and projectiles.

McClarren Camp

In almost similar position with the exception of the island feature, the camp on the S. W. McClarren farm, rivals Hog Island both in number of flints taken and the quality of workmanship. Violent water action spreading across a fertile bottom fringed by sand and gravel hills, uncovered this cache and spread its contents across a vast area of the farm. It was a simple matter to gather them in. In my opinion at least twenty-five thousand have been taken from these two camps. Even now I obtain arrows and the like from these almost exhausted sites.

San Gabriel Camp

Where San Gabriel River quits its banks in flood time at the foot of a gravel escarpment near the town of San Gabriel the heaviest deposit of camp debris has been found. I am certain here once was a thickly settled Indian area and while there is nothing to indicate a cache the middens are especially heavy and numerous fine flints have been taken. Excavations here would yield many things of interest. The largest and finest conk shell beads I have ever seen were dug from the roots of a giant pecan in the bottom of this camp by Clarence Baird of San Gabriel.

Linke Collection

On a sand and clay hill that rounds with the sweep of Elm Creek near the trestle of the Missouri Pacific north of Thorndale lies the old Morrison farm. This is the site of one of the rich Indian village sites of my county. From this camp about 500 pieces were taken and which now belong to the W. J. Linke collection owned by a son at Thorndale. In this collection is a blue flint blade 11 inches long and 7 1-2 inches at the shank base. The blades from this camp are very fine.

Villages Dot Banks

Indian villages dot the banks of Little River near Cameron. A chain of gravel hills feature the west bed of this stream which now throws its floods against the east bank. Down the valley of the river lie ancient lakes and around these depressions that once was the channel of the stream camps are found. In fact, from Bell County on the West to Brazos on the east Little River remains our greatest Indian stream.

The presence of camps in sections far removed from streams of any kind gives evidence that in many places once flowed great springs. Camps are numerous. Comparatively only a few have made yields, although in my collection there is representative flint work from all sections of the county.

Hidden in the deeply made silts of the bottom lands lie many camps. An occasional overflow uncovers portions in both Elm Creek and Little River bottoms. Due to the great area of the county and the limited time I have had to work, much of the territory remains unprospected and unworked. I confidently believe its artifact resources are only about 50 per cent exhausted.

Camps Cultivated

Visiting collectors have marveled at the sweep of my camps, the ease with which they are able to find flints. This condition is due to the fact that almost half of the area covered by these known villages is in the sand fields and thereby cultivated. Many known camps lie in abandoned fields, long since out of cultivation and not infrequently do I find evidences of camps in pastures, notably in the case of Block House Springs on the banks of the Brazos in Milam county near Calvert. The Milam County Indian camps lack the heavy deposits so true of those found in mountainous counties. I am convinced that within the soil of stream bottoms are many yet to be found.

No Quarries

Although the Milam County camps have yielded some of the best flint work known to archaeology the absence of quarries explains the enormous detail of nodule workings and the predominant chert implements. No quarry site has yet been found. Lack of suitable materials at hand led to vast experimentation with ordinary flint boulders, the rejects from which litter all the camp sites. The Georgetown lime is the nearest outcropping flint. This accounts for the better character of work taken from the Brushy Creek, San Gabriel and Western Little River Camps.

Was Game Country

Topography of Milam County indicates that here once was a great game country, and although one would believe that the older and more permanent abodes were in the hills west, still research leads me to believe that Milam county harbored for centuries in permanent domicile a population almost half its present figure. The uniform distribution of villages leads to the belief that the Aborigines found in this section a vast habitable area as against more untenable ground in the western regions.

Valley of the Brazos

Some of my most interesting work has been done in the Brazos valley. I give you as my opinion that within the valley of this Father of Texas waters from as far north as McLennan thence south and east to the coastal area touching in turn Falls, Milam, Brazos, Burleson, Grimes and Waller counties, will some day be found in rich profusion Indian remains comparable in archaeology to that of the Valley of the Kings in Egypt. For millions of years the prongs of this great water source have been bringing down from the red lands of the South Plains the silt that now forms the bottoms of this great area. So deep is this deposit that buried beneath it are once great forests of timber. That it was for millions of years a never failing source of water can be imagined by its great drainage area and the diversity of climate its course touches. Within this valley I have found burials I have guarded and still hold untouched. All along the yellow sweep of this great river in Milam and Robertson counties are some of my richest possessions in discovered village sites.

Sweeping southward and east through Robertson is the great Mumford valley, one of the great land areas of Texas' greatest river. If I am any judge of Indian country, here lies the future theater to which archaeologists will go in increased numbers to find what I confidently believe will climax the study of Aboriginal life on the continent of North America.

Large Collections

Among the large collections of Milam county, besides my own are those of Chas. Nabors, Cameron; Earle Burke, Cameron; Dr. G. E. Sutton, Cameron; Adolph Humphries, Norman Valley; J. R. Hunt, Norman Valley; Lesser Newton, Bryan and Milano.

I have discovered within recent weeks a determined drive by eastern collectors to get out of Texas her richest possessions in Indian relics. If I followed my inclinations tonight I would urge upon the members of this society a solid front of opposition to this carting away of these priceless finds. Not only is the east grasping for our rich heritages in Indian lore and in fossil, but Universities of Europe are constantly taking from the confines of our state, the last vestige of evidence bearing upon the life of these Ancients, while in nominal silence our educators and our law makers view with little apparent concern these impoverishing raids.

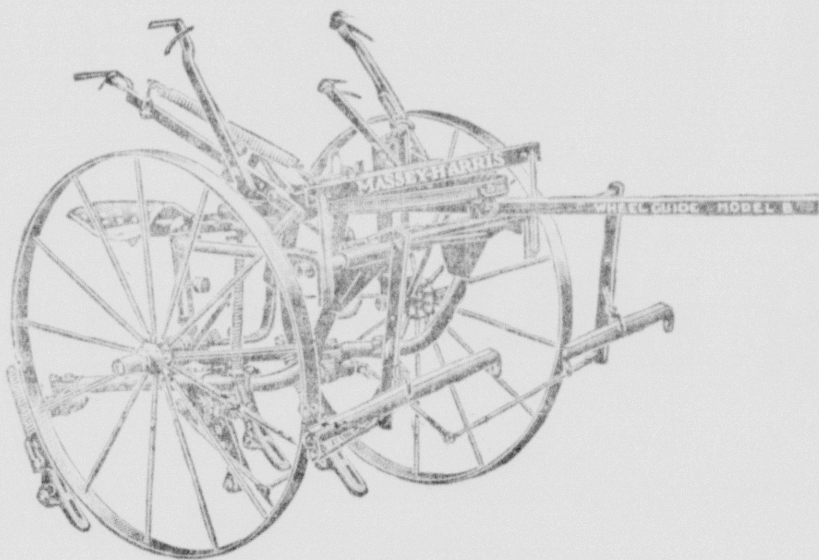

I want these products of our research, from layman to learned man, preserved in Texas for Texas posterity. I want them placed within reach of all so that in the end we shall have reaped full benefit from the noble task begun in years past by men of your patriotism and high resolve for educational advantages.

Teachers Salaries

The Superintendent and the School Board felt that the greater increase should go to those teachers receiving the lowest salaries and therefore followed that policy.

Last year there was a heavy payment of delinquent taxes. Mr. Guy T. Newton discovered, when he took office that two thousand dollars from the year before had been overlooked in the High School Tuition fund which was due the Cameron District. A tightening up on the collection of tuition at the Ada Henderson school, the Negro School, and also the high school has netted the district approximately $1500.00 annually not heretofore collected. Added to these amounts there has been a slight increase in the payment of current taxes.

You readily see that the increase of funds divides itself into two classes. (1) a temporary increase, and (2) a permanent increase.

The temporary increase could not be used as a basis of increasing salaries for it would increase them once only and leave nothing for the future years. Therefore this surplus has been used in the improvement of the physical properties of the School District, the purchase of Band Instruments and certain athletic equipment.

The permanent increase has been used to employ additional teachers to relieve the over burden of other teachers, and to make adjustment of salaries of teachers in the system.

There has been a total increase of six teachers in the system during the last two years, four in the High School, a band instructor, a full time librarian, a home economics teacher, a physical education teacher for girls; one in the Ada Henderson School, and one in the Negro School.

The budget for years 1935-36 and 1936-37 reflect a current estimated income of only $2000.00 above the estimated and contracted expenditures. Surely it is unsafe to operate on a less margin.

It appears very probable at this time that the State will pay to each School District an increased per capita of at least two dollars for next year. Should this be true in all probability this increase will be considered by the Board for distribution among the teachers in the form of increased salaries with the greater per cent of increase going to the teachers with lower salaries.

Silver Persian Cat Adopts Puppy; Now Has Family Of Nine

Priscilla, a Silver Persian has adopted a tiny puppy and is nursing and mothering it along with her 8 babies.

This little tiny black and white puppy, not old enough for its eyes to be open, has been named Queillo, which means origin unknown. This name fits Queillo very well for when she was but a few hours old she was found deserted by a fish pond.

Mrs. Gladys Watson found the little motherless dog and took it to her home and placed it with the mother cat, who caresses and loves the baby puppy as she does her kittens.

AMBITION

Ambition as defined by Webster: "An eager desire for honor," is a possession that every one, rich or poor, old or young, desires. Your ambition of life may not be what others think you could do best, but it is what you want, what you will work for, and what you will get.

Every boy and every girl is entitled to home encouragement and help in bringing his ambition to the point of fruition. He should have books, magazines, parent guidance and teacher influence, to help him select his ambition of life. Failing to receive such sympathy and assistance, he finds himself utterly unable to cooperate with those that are aided. If assistance is not given to the child when young, it may mean the death of all ambition and effort. Ambition must be cultivated and fostered during childhood. Make your decision today; put forth your best effort to reach your ambition; and you will.

There are many of us who care not for ourselves. Maybe because of some wrong doing of our past generations, but that should not hinder us from achieving our highest honor in life. Forget what others think of you, and work for your goal. If you get downhearted, keep your chin up, and gain that victory; for after all, "The world belongs to the energetic, and the ambitious."

Make it your world under the above title.

FINAL EXAMS

Final exams will begin on Tuesday, May 26, and continue through Thursday, May 28.

The following schedule has been drawn up:

Tuesday, May 26—First period classes—1:30—4:00.

Wednesday, May 27—Second period classes—9:00—10:30.

Fifth period classes—10:30—12.

Third period classes—1:00—2:30.

Fourth period classes—2:30—4:00.

Thursday, May 28—Sixth period classes—9:10—10:30.

Seventh period classes—10:35—12:05.

Exams will be given to the seniors beginning on Monday, rather than on Tuesday, so that grades may be in readiness for Commencement Exercises.

Bad tempers and sleepy eyes will probably be greatly in evidence on the parts of both teachers and students during these last weeks of school, but we ask you to be considerate with us, and just remember that there is always a silver lining to every dark cloud, and that final exams cannot last long, at the most.

"JUST PASSING" OR "DOING YOUR BEST"

By Sarah J. Yeager—English 2

In this, the twentieth century, young Americans should endeavor to do their best in school work. Not only in school work, but, in every phase of life, one should do their best one should be "up and doing."

At school, students are graded on the amount of knowledge gained. Students either make 'A's', 'B's', 'C's', or a failure. One need not be in the class that is a failure; one need not be in the class that receives 'C's'. One can 'buckle down' and 'do his best' and be in the class that makes 'A's' and 'B's'.

After finishing school, one has not finished; there still remains the problem of "getting a job" and "holding it." One must be able to do the work to get a job. After gaining a position, to hold it, one must at least make a "C", relatively speaking; but to rise and not only "hold the job," but advance, one must make 'A's' and 'B's'.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON

The Baccalaureate Sermon will be held Sunday night, May 24th at 8:15 o'clock, at the San Gabriel First Christian church. The Rev. J. Kelly Simmons, pastor of the First Baptist church of Thorndale, will deliver the sermon. Special violin music will be rendered by Mrs. Smith Summerlin of Thorndale, Texas.

COMMENCEMENT

The Commencement Exercises will be held Thursday night, May 28, at the high school auditorium.

The theme of the exercises will be "Youth", under which the following topics are developed: "Foot Prints on the Sands of Time," "Against Whatever Odds There Are," and "That Sees Beyond the Years."

Each Senior is working on his talk assignment.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Honor students for the year of 1936 are: Valedictorian—Allyne Faulkner. Salutatorian—Irene Fulcher, and Co-Salutatorian—Lonzo Johnson.

F. F. A. BOYS HONOR HOME-ECONOMICS GIRLS WITH PICNIC

On Monday night, May 11, rather a large crowd, consisting of all Home few faculty members, gathered at Economics girls, F. F. A. boys and a school campus at 7:45 o'clock for an entertainment and an enjoyable evening.

Music was furnished by a few of the group, and every one did his part in having a good time.

Mr. McNeil, the Vocational Agriculture Advisor, lead the group to a very desirable spot on the campus where tables stood filled with Bar-B-Q'd chicken, bread, pickles, etc. Every one ate until they could hold no more.

The group then amused themselves to their own desired ideas. About ten o'clock they departed, gloriously rejoicing over the grand entertainment.

SENIOR PLAY

The Senior play entitled "The Wild Oats Boy" will be presented in the High-school auditorium, Friday night, May 22, at 8:15.

Eddie, played by Johnnie Kunz, lives up to the conditions of his Uncle's ridiculous will by 'hitting the hay' at eight bells each night. Judy, played by Irene Fulcher, is Eddie's fiancee, but due to certain things is snobbish and ill tempered, and turns her fascinating eyes upon the "New Yorker", Pete Conn.

Pat, played by Buby Alta Starnes, is Judy's best pal, but Judy doesn't think so, she really is a "plotter."

Chuch, none other than Howard Willie, is a first-rate, soft-stuff slinger and an excellent ex-prize-fighter.

Eve, played by Dorothy Anness, is the flirt of the play, and does she make them "groggy."

Dorothy Worley and Wayne Issac, known as Prue and Trout in the play are our 'country cousins come to town.' They furnish comedy thru out the play.

Nora and Della, two Irish maids, played by Claude Robinson and Allyne Faulkner have their share in helping the play to be a success with their Irish accent, and maybe colds.

Aunt Ann, played by Verna Jo Garner, is everybody's friend—Trying to help each one just a little bit more than the other.

Uncle Seth, played by Howard Fulcher, is a back woodsman and cares not for city ways. He attends to his own business—and others too.

Mose, the old negro hired hand, played by Lonzo Johnson, is very superstitious. He was very fond of Uncle George, and due to this fact, he thinks he sees Massah George's ghost.

Come and see the full details for your self. Hear the countrified remarks from Prue and Trout. Laugh with the characters, sigh with them, and most of all be with them. You will hear things such as, "Gosh, what makes me like that," "I ain't never heered of ye," "I love you, Judy," "I love your eyes," "I'm a gosh dinged ole' bullwhacker," "Glorious Gly Cerine," etc.

Be present, we'll be expecting you. Remember it's Friday night. Admission 20c and 10c. Family 50c.

FIFTH GRADE READING

Girls of Fifth-grade reading have been studying about dolls. We have made several talks about dolls and we have to meet a certain requirement in silent reading. We made doll houses and dressed small dolls to put in our houses. We thought it very interesting. The furniture was made of spools. We had a book to show us how to make the furniture. The boys studied birds, and made bird houses. We have completed this study and are now studying the flags of the United States.

WANTED—Negro couple to work on farm; man to look after stock and outside work; woman to do cooking and housework. Do not apply unless you want to work. Phone 556 or see J. W. Kemp.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. AMELIA JENSEN

Funeral services for Mrs. Amelia Jensen, 86, of Fort Worth were conducted in Cameron Wednesday morning at the home of a daughter, Mrs. F. J. Beckerman. Rev. J. Coy Williams, pastor of the local Methodist church, conducted the services. Interment was made in Shiner, Texas.

Mrs. Jensen died in Fort Worth at the home of another daughter, Mrs. William Shannon, on Monday night after a lengthy illness.

She was born in Germany at Elberfeld on the Rhine, and came to America when two years of age with her parents. In 1873 she was married to C. F. Jensen in Washington county. Mr. Jensen was in the drug business there for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Jensen then moved to Shiner where he was engaged in the drug business again for several years. Mr. Jensen preceded his wife in death eleven years ago and is also buried in Shiner.

To their union were born ten children of which only four are living as follows: Mrs. Nellie Everett, Fort Worth; Mrs. F. J. Beckerman, Cameron; O. C. Jensen and Mrs. William Shannon, Fort Worth.

After the death of her husband she moved to Cameron and resided. She gained the friendship of many while living in Cameron. During the past three years Mrs. Jensen has lived in Fort Worth. She is a member of the Baptist church.

A brother, Milton Siebel of Fort Worth, also survives.

Down the Lane of MEMORIES

By BERENICE McLERRAN

On June 19, 1879, a young lawyer arrived in Camern by wagon and hung out his shingle. He rose to prominence in civic, political and educational realms and today in spite of his 77 years is still a leader, a man who inspires and advises his fellowmen.

This man is T. S. Henderson. He was born on a farm at old Washington, January 12, 1859, the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Henderson, who came from South Carolina in 1845 bringing with them a retinue of slaves. The Hendersons settled on a plantation four miles west of Washington.

"One of my childhood recollections of the slaves was after the war when the negroes were freed," Mr. Henderson said. "Father called all the slaves to our home from their quarters and read to them the proclamation which gave them their freedom. The negroes were bewildered at first and stood around in groups and talked. They didn't know what to do. They finally struck out for Brenham where federal troops were stationed. The government fed these negroes until they got tired of them. The commander of the federal troops finally sent word to my father to come and get his negroes. The negroes came back and went to work."

Mr. Henderson's early schooling was secured at an old log school one mile from his home. Tom Smith, an ex-Confederate soldier, was the teacher. The students were boys and girls of all ages and sizes. Some had fought in the war between the States. $5.00 in gold was paid each month. "Our money then was in gold and green backs, each with a different value," Mr. Henderson stated.

"I went to school in the town of Old Washington three years. In 1869 free schools were being established. At the age of 14 I left and went to Baylor University, then known as Waco University.

"Dr. Rufus C. Burleson was president of the college. There were more than 200 students attending Waco University which was the largest school in the state at that time. In June 1877 I graduated from the Baylor University, then went to law school at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.

"I came to Cameron in 1879. I chose Cameron because my brother, John N. Henderson recommended Cameron as a desirable location. My brother was district attorney of this district which included Milam, Robertson and Brazos Counties.

"Cameron did not look very appealing. It was rather a dilapidated County Seat, with a population of about 500 people. I established my law office on the west side of the square in upstairs quarters, where the Mondrik building is now, next door to the Gohmert Variety Store. J. B. Ellis had a store in the lower story of the building.

"Merchants here at that time were: C. H. Yoe, Frank M. Smith, A. Gartner, Hood & Meyers, W. B. Streetman. County officers were: R. J. Boykin, county judge; John C. Oxenford, district clerk; J. C. Rogers, county clerk; J. B. Wolf, sheriff and tax collector; F. M. Smith, treasurer; W. W. Hopkins, tax assessor; F. M. Adams, county attorney.

"J. B. Moore was postmaster. The postoffice was located in a frame building on the Moore corner. There were no post office boxes. We had to call for our mail. The mail was delivered by hack out of Rockdale, which was then the chief trading point and through which the I. & G. N. railroad ran. The Santa Fe railroad was built through Cameron in 1881.

"There were about fifteen lawyers here when I came to Cameron. The doctors were: W. M. Woodson, E. J. Powell and N. Cass," Mr. Henderson said.

A year after Mr. Henderson came to Cameron, he was elected County Attorney in the general election in 1880. Back before his election, however, he was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of F. M. Adams.

He served as county attorney until 1882 and then was elected district attorney, serving two terms.

At the age of 25, Mr. Henderson married Miss Minnie Agnes Burns of Marshall. They were married December 10, 1884.

In 1892 he was elected to serve Milam County in the 23rd legislature. In 1895 he was appointed a member of the board of regents of the University of Texas by Governor Chas. A. Culberson. He served 15 years in this position. In 1912 he was a member of the delegation to the National Democratic Convention in Baltimore when Woodrow Wilson was nominated for president. He served on the board of directors of the Brazos Reclamation and Conservation District from the time of organization in 1926 until 1935, when he resigned.

Mrs. Henderson is still active, managing the beautiful two story Colonial styled Henderson home, which is the frequent scene of parties, receptions and other entertainments. She is an active member of the First Baptist church, where she has taught in the Sunday School for fifty years.

She still enjoys club meetings and social activities, taking active parts. Mrs. Henderson graduated from the Marshall Masonic Institute at Marshall. She was born in Caddo Parish, Louisiana.

At The THEATER In Cameron

By C. W. GJEDDE

Fights and loves with gallantry again in 20th Century's "Under Two Flags," the tremendous drama spectacle which brings Ronald Colman, Claudette Colbert, Victor McLaglen and Rosalind Russell to the screen of the Cameron Theatre Sunday and Monday May 24 and 25.

Telling the story of a man who is brought back from a self-imposed doom by the love of a woman, the new picture affords Colman and Miss Colbert the greatest opportunities of their unusual screen careers.

She is a hoydenish child of the desert madly in love with the charming Colman, but he in turn gives his heart to Rosalind Russell. When Colman's commander, Victor McLaglen finds that this soldier stands between him and Miss Colbert, he makes every effort to destroy his subordinate by placing him in posts of danger.

The thundering climax shows how a Legion attack, headed by Miss Colbert rescues Colman from the tortures of the Arabs.

Frank Lloyd directed this mammoth undertaking which employed ten thousand extras in the making.

Gregory Ratoff, Nigel Bruce, C. Henry Gordon and Herbert Mundin are only a few of the illustrious names that grace the supporting cast of the Darryl F. Zanuck production.

"LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST"

EXPANSION PLANS FOR KRAFT PLANTS

Erection of an ultra-modern two-story office building, the Denison headquarters of the Southwestern division of Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation is a probability of the future, A. J. Riddle, general manager of the division, revealed Thursday afternoon.

Information that plans for expanded office facilities were being considered came simultaneously with the announcement from Mr. Riddle that the division headquarters of the Kraft Associated Distributors, Inc., the organization's distributing agency, will be returned soon to Denison from Kansas City, Missouri.

The increasing demand made by manufacturing operations for space in the present structure, where the offices are located, indicate that a separate office building will be more feasible than an attempt to enlarge the existing quarters.

Supplementing the steady growth of present operations with their proportionate space requirements will be the immediate inauguration of a cheese popcorn department for which machinery now is enroute to Denison, Mr. Riddle explained.

Built of brick and comprising 70,000 square feet of floor space, the new building will be erected on the east side of the factory, and will embody air conditioning, soundproof walls and other modern conveniences. Plans have not progressed far enough for an estimation of cost.

To Extend Avenue

The City Commission has agreed to open Brown Avenue north to Washington Street to provide access on the east to the office and factory, and the new structure will face east. Driveways through the Kraft grounds will be backstopped for added convenience.

Return of the distribution agency's headquarters to Denison will restore at least ten more employees here, Mr. Riddle said. The stall was moved to Kansas City two years ago, and its return and the erection of the new office quarters will mark the added concentration of Kraft in Denison.

The office building will mark Kraft's third major expansion in Denison. The first was the opening of the present factory to replace the small plant at the south end of the viaduct. A $90,000 addition to the new factory was the second expansion.

Cheese popcorn, a novel confection that already has gained wide popularity in the East, will be a permanent feature of the Denison factory, and will receive special emphasis during the Texas Centennial, Mr. Riddle explained. The Cheese encrusted corn will be marketed in cellophane protected cartons.

A south American type popcorn is used for the delicacy, and the production of this corn may contribute further to diversified farming in the Denison district. The department will bring an increase in factory employment.

THEODORE'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

LITT BARRETT IS BURIED TUESDAY

Lit Barrett, 51, widely known Milam county citizen, died in a local hospital at 10 o'clock Monday night May 18, 1936, following an operation for appendicitis.

The causes which led to his death began on Sunday when he suffered an acute attack. In the late afternoon he was brought to Cameron and the operation was performed.

While his condition was known to be serious from the beginning hopes were held for his recovery. When news came of his death hundreds were grief stricken, for he had a wide circle of friends in all walks of life.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at North Elm Baptist church, Rev. G. B. Kindall conducting the services. Interment was made in North Elm cemetery.

Lit Barrett was born and reared in the Yarrington community. He had been engaged in farming all his life. His father, the late John Barrett, was Commissioner for Precinct No. 1 and is also buried in the North Elm Cemetery.

He is survived by his widow and two sons, Smith and Frank Barrett, both of the Yarrington community.

Mr. Barrett, both as a neighbor and friend, drew to himself the affectionate regard of many and in his death the hearts of many are saddened. A man of unusual stature he was the picture of health and his ready smile and handshake revealed the sunny heart that held within its expanse a place for large friendships and neighborliness.

Henry Hlavacek is in the Cameron Hospital. He was operated on two weeks ago and in the last issue of the Herald it was reported that he had returned to his farm home at Ad Hall. Mr. Hlavacek hopes to return home soon but for the present he is still in the hospital in Cameron.

The pall bearers were: Joe Ford, G. W. Blansett, Clarence Coleburn, J. M. Fuller, G. W. Lock, Sam Clark.

John Young of Buckholts won the Class B championship. Speedy Braden began his checker playing 3 years ago. He first played with Penn Wolf, district clerk, who saw his possibilities and encouraged him. He had access to the checker library of Mr. Wolf and now finds himself the champion.

Mr. Braden said 52 took part in the contest which began at 7:30 and ended at 3 a. m.

Jim Sampson and Morris Mayfield were business visitors in Dallas Friday.

FORMER STUDENT OF COLORED SCHOOL WINS

O. J. Thomas, principal of the colored high school in Cameron, has received a letter from Dussie Poole, former graduate here and now a student in Prairie View telling of his recent triumph on a judging team. The letter is published to show the success of the colored students who get their training under Professor Thomas:

"I have made it safely back to P. V., so I thought that I would write and tell you the outcome of the contest. We had two teams each composed of two men. I was on the livestock judging team in which we took first place. I was the highest scoring individual in the contest. I will receive a medal for that. The medals were very few, for they were giving only medals for first place, so there were only five medals in all. No school received more than one medal. There were about fifteen schools in the conference out of which nine were present. The instructors were very happy and surprised because we had had no training. My credit for winning must come back to Cameron, because that's all the training I had. We had a very nice and enjoyable trip. I will tell about it later. Yours respectfully, Dussie Poole.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Smith, Jr., have returned from a trip to Brownville.
